Hi Michael,

Can't remember anymore sorry. I do know someone made a comment that we have to protect the "livelihoods" of businesses bidding on government contracts. Might that help find the exact exemption(s) we were discussing in the conference recording?

Thanks Kevin. Do you recall what we were discussing when you made the first comment? I am trying to figure out which of the business transactional exemptions it would apply to and how.

Hi Michael.

Here's the comments I posted in the conference call chat window of the Attorney General's Public Records Law Reform Task Force Subgroup Wednesday, April 13th, 2016 1:00 – 3:00 PM http://www.doj.state.or.us/releases/Pages/2016/rel040616.aspx

Why is it in the public interest to guarantee livelihoods to businesses seeking gov't contracts? Sounds like we're enshrining potential cronyism... Don't we have to err on the side of public visibility on this type disbursement of taxpayer funds to maintain public confidence such transactions? Is there any oversight to this? If so, by whom?

What recommendation can the subcommittee make to ensure that confidential licensed professional matters are being handled properly by the gov't entity adjudicating the complaints? Is it left to the gov't entity to oversee and police itself? Why can't info be abstracted (individual info is redacted) for oversight purposes?

Where is the oversight of welfare benefit issuance? How do we detect patterns of malfeasance? Can't, again, this be done without exposing private info?
